Samuel Horgan

Sam Horgan is a Interdisciplinary artist and MFA Candidate at the Lamar Dodd School of Art. He makes sculptures and film on American themes; dread, doom, ecstasy, paranoia. History, politics, technology, religion, and magic proliferate the same space. Bits of wood, metal, plastic, clay, found objects, recycled media all find their way into large and small works as accretions of matter and information.

Marie Mosley

I'm a tattoo apprentice at Empire Ink in Kennesaw, Georgia. I enjoy tattooing realism and surrealism. Many of my paintings have been shown in group exhibitions in Atlanta. I enjoy creating works with Christian themes, as I am a follower of Christ. Most of my work explores femininity and spirituality.

Taylor DiFonzo

Taylor DiFonzo is an apprentice at Chico Lou's Fine Tattoos. They grew up in Atlanta and moved to Athens in 2016 to pursue their BFA in Printmaking and Book Arts and a minor in Art History at UGA. After graduating in 2020, Taylor continued working as a bartender for a couple of years and decided tattooing and piercing were the perfect combination of their love for the service industry and meticulous art making in 2022. They are currently exploring neo-traditional tattoo styles and applying the illustrative mark-making that they fell in love with in school to tattoos.
